HONGKONG, JUNE 6TH 1885.

Two disgraceful scene which took place in the Mixed Court at Shangbai on the 29th ultimo ought to have the effect of leading to energetic action being taken for the reform of that remarkable institution ... A personal fraces on the bond between a magistrate and his assessor is an event that can hardly be allowed to pass by without natice. accounts of the fraces as given in the local papers differ somewhat in details. A dispute arose between Mr. Hukng and Mr. Grazs as to the dedision to be given in a certain case, and an appeal seems to have been made to fisticuffs. According to the N. C. Daily News, Mr. Huang emphasised the offensive personal remarks he addressed to Mr. GILES. by rapping him sharply on the knuckles with the inky and of a pen which he held in postulated with nim on his conduct, whereupon the Magistrate, beside himself with rage, jumped up and shouting out something in Chinese deliberately struck Mr. GILES on the shoulder, with his open hand. Mr. Gilles, who naturally appeared to find it very difficult to keep his temper under this provocation, hastily left the beach, overturning a small table as he stepped down." The Courier's account is written in a funny vein. Whether accuracy has been intentionally sacrificed to effect or not we cannot say. After referring to what was said by the Magistrate to Mr. Grass, the account goes on: -Giles, who raised his hands smartly to give force to his remarks, and in doing so he knocked the Chinese pen out of the Magistrate's hand. The Magistrate wished to know what Mr. Grass meant by such bebaviour. Mr. Gilles replied that it was an his hands to give force to his remarks atruck Mr. Ginzs on the chest. Mr. Ginzs then packed up his tin box and left the Court." a joke." That Mr. Grass possesses a good deal more of the fortiler in re than the suaviter in mode we know, but possessing European ideas as to the dignity of a court of law it is incondisturbance by knocking the pen out of Mrs HUARG's hand in order "to emphasise his remarks." The Mercury's account is as follows -Mr. HUARG, in his excitement (accidentally it may be supposed), struck the Assessor over the hand with a long steel pen, leaving. a mark. The Assessor, averting the blow, sent the pen fiving into the middle of the Court-room. Hereupon Mr. HUANG, losing command of himself altogether, struck Mr. GILES a blow on the back with his fist. The Assessor, however, did not retaliate, but immediately left the Court." It will be oh. served that both the Daily News and the struck Mr. Grans over the hand with his pen. The Mercury suggests that it may have been done accidentally, but whether this was so it is rather unfortunate that Mr. Grass should have "sent the pen flying into the middle of the Court room," for this doubtless be seized upon the Chinese to show that Mr. Giles himself had made use of some violence. That the quite clear from the reports, but if Mr.

The Mascotte Ones Company scored a great was well filled by an audience, who from borin-The Courier understands that the telegraph | ning to end of the opera testified no other feelings In our remarks upon the opening performance of this company with Wallace's "Maritans," we expressed the opinion that the company, though giving much satisfaction on that occasion, would be seen to greater advantage in the more modern and of the present day. "Girofle Girofle" is an opers which has been played all over, the world given. with the greatest success, and though as regards the quality of the music we must give the palm fun and go, and the dislogue so crisp with puns audience it evoked considerably more enthrainem. The music is very pretty, however, being all through bright and joyous.

The plot is of somewhat, flinny material, and may be briefly described as follows: - Girefle and Giroft are the twin days hters of Don Botero, a.L. While the ceremonies are proceeding Girofta is carried off by pirates, and almost directly afterwards Moreouk arrives and demands his bride. The parents are distracted by fear of this truculent son-in-law, and the mother hits on a schome. The two sisters are so exactly slike that they wear different coloured ribbons to distinguish one from the other, and she brings out Girofle with Girofla's ribbon to present to the Moor as his promised bride, in the meantime The junk her husband had formerly lived in was plaintiff personally; they were paid by his friend, bribing the Spanish admiral to annihilate the pirates and recover the stolen daughter. The great fun of the opers centres in the scenes that follow the constant dilemmas the two parents, on another junk. He had been in their service and the one daughter are in, and their artifices to two years and witness did not anspect him. stars off the two husbands, who are each impatiently demanding their wives. The Spanish Admiral, instead of annihilating the pirates, is knocked into a cocked hat, and then the parents are obliged to let the Moor know the true state of the case. Just when it seems that this gentle son-in-law is about to slice up Don Bolero with his scimitar, the news arrives that the pirates have been defeated, and Girofla recovered, and everything ends up satisfactorily. The opera was well placed on the stage, while the dresses were rich and appropriate. The performance was again much aided by an orchestra, which on this occasion accompanied in a manner that left little room for faultfinding. Miss Eva Davenport assumed the dual role of the twin sisters, and she was enabled to do so by the fact that they are never on the scene tegether, and that they are supposed to exactly resemble each other. We cannot say too much in praise of Miss Davenport's rendering of these two characters; both as an notress and a veculist this lady showed herself to be well worthy of the position she holds-in. the Company. It would be too long a task to enumerate the different parts of her personation where she called down the most enthusiastic applans from the andi-nce, but we cannot omit to mention the way in which ale render of the drinkingsong. Among the male charactors, the palm on this occasion must be awarded to Mr. Farley, who gave a regular charter the steamer L'ergia, just arrived here cheap juvenile fiction representation of the Moor Morsouk, repeatedly convolsing the house with his ludierous displays of tanguinary and savage disposition. Mr. Neil O'Brien had a heavy character to undertake in that of Don Bolero, and though this is a part which has always fallen to the lot of the leading comedian of the company, who is unfortunately unable to perform now from sickness, it was sustained with great redit, and in every way to the satisfaction of applied to pass his last examination. the audience. To the illustrate the vast scope of the wor following facts are submitted for consideration :- Chalmers Vocabulary contains about 16.00 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's Engli and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, while this work sontains more than 50,000 Englis words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characteristics ters. Again, despite all the grammers an other elementary works as vet published th student of this difficult language absolutely re quires examples to display the various appl cations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these example this work contains more than five times a many as any other Dictionary hitherto pul

What praise we all were ready to bestow' Upon a deed which time will magnify, And which we ne'er shall willingly let die We talk of courage on the battle-field; And our chief honours to those "horoes" yield, Whose claim to greatness is the lives they icke, The towns they sack, the orphans that they make. We talk of courage | But, if he be bold Who shoots his enemies when he is told. What shall we say of these true heroes, then, Who risk their lives to save their follow-mon? And if we lavish crosses, titles, stars, On every-bold and dashing Son of Mars, What worthy honour could her country give To Alice Ayres, if she but yet did live? For think a moment why it was she died, And why grim death so scolly she defied! . The children that she saved were not her own: None would have blamed her had she jumped alone 'Twas not a mother's instinct moved her heart; Nor did the play of tender sister's part: Not it was love-unselfth, noble, pure-Which led her to those children's lives make size. It may have been she heard a plaintive cry. And that it perved her thus to do or die: It matters not, -she knew the children's need, And acted like a heroine indeed !

And you will scarcely meet her parallel; Or find 'monret what in womanhood is best-A noble love, so gallantly express'd. Surely, then, sots like hers should lead to fame. And make renowned the very humblest rame; And if we conrege percepties at all. "Tis on such deeds as hers reward should fall.
